

HOFSTRA UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

ELECTRONIC RESOURCE USE POLICY

In addition to the University's Acceptable Use Policy, the use of many electronic resources provided by Hofstra University libraries such as subscriptions and digital material is governed by license agreements negotiated between the University and publishers or other third parties. These licenses may impose greater restrictions on use of the electronic resource than copyright law.

Licenses generally prohibit large-scale or systematic downloading of articles or other information, certain sharing of articles or other information with other individuals, and using articles or information for commercial purposes. Users should be aware that publishers may monitor the use of their electronic resources to ensure that the terms of the license agreement are enforced.

Access to or use of subscription digital resources is governed by the University's Acceptable Use Policy and may be further restricted by the publisher under the applicable license. Any questions about specific licensing restrictions for any subscription or other digital resource may be referred to Howard Graves, Director of Library and Information Services.

In addition to the terms of the University's Acceptable Use Policy, the following uses of licensed content are prohibited, except as otherwise permitted or provided by applicable law or the license:

- remove, obscure or alter any copyright or other notices, trademarks, logos, service marks or any other proprietary rights appearing in or on the licensed content,
- update, change, revise, adapt, modify, translate, transform or create any derivative work of the licensed content,
- re-distribute, reproduce, or transmit the licensed content by any means including electronic (e. g., via e-mail, FTP) nor post it on personal or public websites or on public networks,
 - except that users may transmit to a third party colleague reasonable amounts of licensed content solely for user's personal educational, scientific or research purposes and in no case for resale
- systematically download any licensed content, use routines designed to continuously and automatically search and index the licensed content (full text and meta data), such as web-crawling or spider programs or engage in any activity likely to burden the platforms
- directly or indirectly use or assist any third party to use the licensed content for any commercial or monetary purposes including without limitation any sale, resale, loan, transfer or upload of the licensed content to a commercial entity's internet website, or otherwise charge a fee for access; or
- otherwise use the licensed content in a manner that would infringe the copyright or other proprietary rights contained therein.

Infringement of these basic restrictions may prompt a publisher to deny access to their licensed content to the entire Hofstra University community. This policy is subject to change from time to time.
